Garden Wildlife Week 2020 is running from the 1st till the 7th of June.

Think about the ways you can tap into all of the natural goodness that garden wildlife has to offer. Investigate how you can promote ways in which you can get involved with supporting a well-balanced ecosystem to help the health of your garden.

You could carry out a survey to record the number of different birds you hear in your garden or go on a local walk and take photos of plants and insects. When you get home find out what they are all called. There are some really good apps that will help you do this. Then you could make a photo collage or paint something that has captured your attention.

If you have some old wood, you could make a bug house for your garden.

Check out the free resources on the wild life trust web site to get you started.

Say Something Nice Day

Ever heard the saying”If you can’t say something nice, don’t say anything at all?”

Well on June 1, be kind to everyone you meet and say something nice to them because it is Say Something Nice Day. The day aims to encourage people to spread cheer and goodwill by opening up channels of communication and by focusing on the good in everyone.

You could write a poem to reflect on all the lovely things around you, or write a letter to someone you care about or want to say thank you to.

You could design a card to send to someone you haven't seen in a while to tell them how wonderful they are.

The 5th June is World Environment Day 2020

World Environment Day is the United Nations day for encouraging worldwide awareness and action to protect our environment. The theme this year is "Biodiversity."
